Speaker:

Axel KRICKOW

Business activities of international groups are growing up quickly. Emerging technologies and innovative products open the door to new markets or customers. In this context it is important to be aware of all international trade regulations and restrictions.

Stefan WOLL

Against the background of international conflicts and state security efforts as counter-proliferation, financial sanctions or prevention of terrorism, it is vital for contractors to observe developments in supply chain security and trade control.

Well-known international experts in Strategic Trade Control and Embargo Regulations“

Prohibitions and restrictions are complex and – in the meantime – hardly to understand.

This seminar – held in English – should be a platform to discuss the European and the German approach with export control and sanctions rules. The seminar content will range from legal guidelines to practical procedural matters and recommendations for internal compliance.
